

Have I Ever Fallen

Owen Danoff

When the nights don't seem as lonely, when the skies don't look as gray
When I'm not watching movies only to keep my ugly thoughts at bay
When she's just another girl, not a blessing from above
Have I ever really fallen, have I ever really fallen in love?

When she don't ask how I'm doing, when I don't keep up the game
When there's another man she's wooing, and I don't care to know his name
When it's cast off like a blanket instead of fitting like a glove
Have I ever really fallen, have I ever really fallen in love?

Is there something I'm missing?
Would the real thing really end this way?
Seemed perfect to me, but pretty soon
We were only kissing 'cause there was nothing to say

When it's supposed to last for ages, and we live to see it's died
Is it a word just ripped from pages that we've bent and misapplied?
Even though I swore I meant it, when the pushing comes to shove
Have I ever really fallen, have I ever really fallen in love?

We were drowning in laughter
We thought we'd have it as long as our lives would last
We thought we'd go far, but pretty soon
Our forever after was a thing of the past

When I'm on my way to sleeping and my phone begins to chime
And no force on Earth is keeping me from catching it in time
When my heart it starts to flutter, and it's not her I'm thinking of
Have I ever really fallen, have I ever really fallen in love?
Have I ever really fallen, have I ever really fallen in love?
Have I ever really fallen, have I ever really fallen in love?
