

Never Trust a Man

Owen Danoff

Girl, what'd you hope to find here?
Did you really think love was real?
You gave yourself, he was out on loan
He took what you offered, for none of his own
And you watched him go
So I hope you know

Never trust a man
Never trust a man
He will hold you up high
Then he'll open his hands
Never trust a man

Girl, who're you trying to hold so close?
Grow up now, no believing in ghosts
If the face is familiar, the eyes ain't the same
He's changing his locks and forgetting your name
He's most mean and strong
When he knows he's wrong

Never trust a man
Never trust a man
He'll be hurting you more
Than you thought you could stand
Never trust a man

His fuel is rage, his engine pain
He'll twist what you say, and he'll make it bad
He needs a fight that won't subside
'Cause he knows he'd die if he saw the aftermath

Never trust a man
Never trust a man
Never trust a man
Never trust a man
