

On&On&On

Owen Danoff

I messed up again, didn't know when to stop, drop
I did you wrong
Blind until the end, I can't seem to tell what's real and what's pretend
Until it's gone

Now I'm bruised and battered, torn and tattered
I traded all that mattered for a song
And there's no going back, its clear
But maybe, if you ever hear it,
The hurt will fade, we'll go our separate ways,
And life goes on and on and on

I know I let you down, never been a good man to hand a
Heart to for long
I hope you know I feel it now, I can't even close my eyes, or I'll see
All that I've done wrong

Well I tried, I swear I tried
But in the end, I guess I've never been that strong
I don't have the perfect words,
But if it's the meanings that you've heard, maybe
The hurt will fade, we'll go our separate ways
And life goes on and on and on

And to this day I regret I was the one to say goodbye
And my heart breaks all over new when I recall you asking why

I messed up again, didn't know when to stop, drop
I did you wrong
Blind until the end, I can't seem to tell what's real, and what's pretend
Until it's gone

Now I'm bruised and battered, torn and tattered
I traded all that mattered for a short, sad song
And there's no going back, its clear
But maybe, if you ever hear it,
The hurt will fade, we'll go our separate ways,
And life goes on and on and on
